Ride like a champion: “Riding Star 3D”

TREVA Entertainment publishes a realistic riding simulation in the Nintendo eShop for the Nintendo 3DS™. Players train their horse in Show Jumping, Dressage and Military disciplines and take part in exciting tournaments.

Hamburg, 4th December 2014 – with “Riding Star 3D” TREVA Entertainment GmbH is publishing a riding simulation for the Nintendo 3DS that will enthrall not only children, but equestrian enthusiast adults too. It is not just the impressive 3D view, but also the realism of handling the horse and the riding controls that combine to deliver an authentic experience.

Players care lovingly for their own horse, and in doing so, build a trusting relationship with their mount. It is only as a well disciplined team that they will earn the opportunity to take part in challenging equestrian events. Grooming and scraping out the horse’s hooves belong just as much to the rider’s tasks as does careful, balanced feeding. Once they have a well groomed and contented horse, then the training can begin: speed, endurance and jumping strength are on the timetable. The control while riding the horse is carried out using the Circle Pad. The aim is for both horse and rider to get themselves fit enough to enter challenging tournaments. They will then be able to prove themselves in the disciplines of Show Jumping, Dressage and Military. “Riding Star 3D” offers a Hot-seat mode at this point, which then allows up to six players to have a ride, alternatively up to four riders can play as a team and go up against other nations or launch a Horse Swap challenge.

Will the ‘dream team’ lift the world championship title?
